MEMORANDUM FOR: Chief, E/IB/S [REDACTED]

Operational Approval is hereby granted in the case of LOPEZ, Henry P.
_____, for the purpose specified in your request dated as follows _____.

1. Operational Approval is granted for the use of Subject in Spain (a) to identify, cultivate, and acquire intelligence from those individuals and groups within Spain who now play, and can be expected to play in the post-Franco period, a significant role in determining Spanish domestic and foreign policy, and (b) to spot and assess individuals within the above group for possible recruitment by other Station assets, specifically as set forth in paragraph 3 of the memorandum dated 3 June 1968 addressed to CI/OA by AC/E/IB. No other use authorized.
2. It is understood that Subject himself will not attempt recruitments nor will he be required to break his cover.
3. In view of his background, it is recommended that caution be exercised in dealing with Subject.
4. This cancels and supersedes all previous approvals.

This Approval is based upon evaluation of information available to this Office, and is granted under authority contained in CSI and CSI-F 10-5.

Henry P. López o la Votación Mexicana en los Estados Unidos

Por CARLOS DENEGRI

VII.—LOS ANGELES

¿Que decir de la influencia de México y de su cultura en los Estados Unidos?

"Por favor —dice el abogado Henry P. López—, note usted la acertada sensibilidad política del Presidente Kennedy, y tendremos una primera respuesta a su pregunta. Kennedy ha escogido a un mexicano de origen, ciudadano norteamericano, claro está, Ramón Teller, ex alcalde de El Paso, como embajador de los Estados Unidos en Costa Rica... Otro mexicano, de origen, ha sido designado para dirigir el juzgado de distrito del Sur de Texas. El caso de Enrique González, abogado de San Antonio, es un ejemplo más..."

Pero, ¿quién es Henry P. López...? Nos lo presenta J. Carlos McCormick, ayudante especial del subsecretario auxiliar adjunto de Asuntos Interamericanos, del Departamento de Estado, en Washington: "De ascendencia mexicana, el abogado estadounidense Henry P. López ha logrado una brillante carrera como internacionalista y miembro prominente del Partido Demócrata de California. Graduado en Harvard, miembro de la eminente fraternidad "Phi Beta Kappa", fue el triunfador en el concurso nacional de oratoria de 1942. Candidato de su partido, en 1958, para el cargo de secretario de Estado del Gobierno de California, obtuvo una de las más altas votaciones estatales española que nos dieron su voto en Estados claves; así donde la lucha fue más intensa".

Declaración histórica.

"...En California, por ejemplo, el voto potencial del Estado —me refiero al de filiación mexicana de origen—, es de un millón trescientos mil. En Texas, de doscientos cincuenta mil. En Nuevo México, cerca del cincuenta por ciento del electorado es de origen mexicano".

La mayoría de estos votantes son demócratas. Interés, pues, del Partido en el poder, en Estados Unidos, es el de cuidar de cerca, alentar y encantar a esos millones de hispanoamericanos, como los llaman en el vecino país.

"Por eso fue que en la campaña de 1960, por primera vez en la historia, se crearon batallones especiales de mexicanos de origen que, al grito de "Viva Kennedy", asaltaron cívicamente las casillas electorales, dando el triunfo al de Nueva Inglaterra".

Nuestro intermediario, McCormick, fue precisamente el capitán en jefe de esos "batallones" de paisanos...

"Baste haber viajado por la parte sur del país, para que hasta el más superficial observador reconozca, de inmediato, la influencia de México. En la arquitectura, en la música, en la alimentación, en los nombres españoles de las ciudades; en la misma composición étnica del pueblo".

El abogado Henry P. López, enumera, en seguida, los diversos capítulos de lo que él considera la influencia mexicana en los Estados Unidos.

"Lo que respecta a la arquitectura. México ha fijado la imagen de su pasado colonial en incontables edificios, plazas, santuarios y hasta en poblados enteros de Texas, California, Nuevo México, Colorado. Y aun en la misma ciudad imperial de Nueva York. Hay lugares como Santa Bárbara y Monterrey, en California, capaces de evocar tan exquisito sabor hispánico, que nadie puede substraerse a la nostalgia que todo ello produce. Pero no toda la influencia arquitectural de México en los Estados Unidos es colonial. La moderna arquitectura, también tiene toques de mexicanidad. Ahí está, si no, la admirable fachada del edificio "Félix Candela".

Este excelente arquitecto, ejerce una extraordinaria influencia en la arquitectura moderna de Estados Unidos, y, en general, en todas las manifestaciones artísticas y estéticas. Acaba de ser llamado a ocupar la cátedra de poesía en la Universidad de Harvard, donde, en estupendas conferencias, ha desarrollado interesantes teorías sobre el dinamismo poético del moderno dibujo estructural.

Su genio se revela en numerosos edificios construidos en diversas partes del país vecino

López añade:

"En lo que respecta a las artes plásticas, México ha tenido un persistente impacto en la mentalidad norteamericana. En millares de hogares se pueden ver reproducciones de cuadros de Diego Rivera, José Clemente Orozco o David Alfaro Siqueiros. Esto no sólo en el Sur, sino en todo el país, del uno al otro confín...

"Y en más reciente manifestación artística, tenemos a Rufino Tamayo y a José Luis Cuevas. Estos ejercen influencia de vanguardia entre los artistas norteamericanos contemporáneos".

Prosigue López:

"Los autores mexicanos, escritores y poetas, no han tenido aun la abundante publicidad que ha acogido a los pintores. Pero, sin embargo, recientemente han recibido aceptación dos jóvenes escritores: Luis Spota y Carlos Fuentes..."

Nada más?

"Es triste deplorar que muchos norteamericanos se ven, aun privados del placer de leer a Mariano Azuela, Carlos González Peña, José Vasconcelos y otros titanes de las letras mexicanas. Sin embargo, puede advertirse de San Antonio, para ocupar una curul en la Cámara de Representantes de Washington, ha hecho resaltar la creciente importancia de la población mexicanoamericana de los Estados Unidos".

"Tanto así? Una elección local?"

"El propio Presidente Kennedy, consciente de este hecho y de las grandes proyecciones políticas de su contenido, no vaciló en intervenir personalmente en apoyo de la candidatura de González. Es más: envió al vicepresidente Johnson a San Antonio para que luchase codo con codo. El mismo Mario Moreno "Cantinflas" cooperó con el Partido Demócrata. La victoria de González fue arrolladora".

Normalmente, es innulito que un Presidente comprometa su personalidad en una campaña política local.

"Esta vez, la actitud de Kennedy no sorprendió a los políticos. Era esperada. Formaba parte de la Nueva Frontera. Hace mucho tiempo que sabemos que el voto de los mexicanos de origen es decisivo. Sobre todo en los Estados de Texas, California, Arizona, Nuevo México y Colorado".

López nos recuerda que el propio hermano del actual mandatario estadounidense, y jefe de su campaña electoral, Robert Kennedy, a raíz del triunfo demócrata, declaró con toda sinceridad, y frente a los reporteros del mundo entero: "es muy probable que nuestra victoria se deba en gran parte a los norteamericanos de habla un reciente y súbito interés por las novelas y cuentos de Juan José Arreola y Juan Rufo".

"Si pasamos al arte cinematográfico, de máximo interés moderno, México puede convertirse en el centro de una de las más grandes producciones artísticas del mundo. Los más refinados y exigentes expectadores de Nueva York, Los Angeles, Chicago y otras ciudades, se han impresionado grandemente con películas tales como: "Macario", "Raíces", "Los Olvidados" y otras más de extraordinaria factura".

(En los círculos cinematográficos se menciona con elogio al mexicano Gabriel Figueroa, como a uno de los camarógrafos más grandes del mundo)...

"Y por supuesto —comenta López con una amplia sonrisa—, ni que hablar de nuestro extraordinario "Cantinflas", que se ha convertido en la atracción de taquilla más importante, a la altura de Anthony Quinn, Gilbert Roland".

En el campo profesional, un número considerable de brillantes profesionistas mexicano-americanos, se han distinguido en sus respectivas actividades.

Mencionemos, por ejemplo, el gran abogado Raúl Magaña, de Los Angeles, que es considerado como el mejor litigante al oeste del Mississippi.

Además, es amigo personal del Presidente Kennedy. Fue su coordinador en la campaña que llevó al de Massachusetts a la Presidencia. Idea suya fue el famoso botón amarillo con el sombrero de charro y el "Viva Kennedy!", así, en español, que llevaron en la solapa a millones de norteamericanos de origen mexicano.

Entre otros muchos cargos, Henry P. López es presidente de la Juventud Demócrata de California. Quien dice California, quien dice Texas, quien dice Colorado, ya toca un poco las fronteras humanas de México.

Esas fronteras que se extienden hasta donde quiera que exista un hogar mexicano.

¿Enrique González?

"La elección reciente de Enrique González, abogado de San Antonio, para ocupar una curul en la Cámara de Representantes de Washington, ha hecho resaltar la creciente importancia de la población mexicanoamericana de los Estados Unidos".

¿Tanto así? ¿Una elección local?

"El propio Presidente Kennedy, consciente de este hecho y de las grandes proyecciones políticas de su contenido, no vaciló en intervenir personalmente en apoyo de la candidatura de González. "Por eso fue que en la campaña de 1960, por primera vez en la historia, se crearon batallones especiales de mexicanos de origen que, al grito de "Viva Kennedy", acallaron ruidosamente las cavilaciones electorales, dando el triunfo al de Nueva Inglaterra".

Nuestro intermediario, McCormick, fue precisamente el capitán en jefe de esos "batallones" de pasantes...

Bueno, pero... Nosotros sabemos que se trata de mexicanos de origen. Ese origen, también opera en el ánimo, la moral, la profesión, la sensibilidad de quienes representan "a la raza" en los asuntos públicos de los Estados Unidos".

Pregunta necesaria, no impertinente.

"Conozco a González, ahora representante en Washington. Siempre se ha sentido orgulloso de su ascendencia mexicana. En muchos de sus discursos exhorta "a sus paisanos" a que visiten México; a que perfeccionen su español; a que no olviden sus tradiciones, magníficas y ejemplares. Este mismo orgullo de su origen, se advierte en el senador Dennis Chavez; en el diputado José Montoya; y en políticos de la talla de Eduardo Roybal, Alberto Peña y otros más".

Insistimos. Nos interesa, ciertamente, la sensibilidad política del actual momento nacional de los Estados Unidos. Pero nos interesa también, y muy particularmente, la influencia cultural de nuestro país...

He aquí lo que nos dice López, maestro de Harvard:

TICKBOEN

Although the sweet sound of 20 billion dollars created a momentary euphoria at the Punta del Este conference several weeks ago, it is now obvious that President Kennedy's prodigious "Alianza para el Progreso" faces a difficult uncertain future.

The delegates had scarcely returned home when the Goulart-Brazilian crisis erupted and thereby threatened the very beginnings of Kennedy's hopeful proposal. And certainly no seasoned observer of Latin American politics can assume that the Brazilian crisis has been resolved by the quickly-devised modus operandi which permitted Joao Goulart to assume the presidency. Goulart insisted the constitutional amendment limiting his powers be submitted to Brazilian voters in a referendum, clearly indicating he will not be content with a mere figurehead status. With the conservative militarists still adamant in their opposition to a fully-powered Goulart, a civil war (a prolonged and bloody one) may be in the offing. Meanwhile, the creators of the Alliance for Progress find themselves in a watchful, hopeful dither.

But, aside from the Brazilian problem, the Alianza already had and still has a number of formidable obstacles which were readily observable from the outset. Fully granting the immense possibilities offered by this economic Magna Carta for the Americas, it would be foolish to overlook or to minimize those basic harsh realities of which dreams are not made.

Among the toughest realities facing the Alliance is the Congress of the United States, which has always been reluctant to approve long-range foreign aid. Even before the U. S. delegation had returned to Washington, Senator Thruston Morton grumpily informed the press that the Republican Party would have no part of Dillon's "wild schemes." Then, in a week of now-you-have-it-now-you-don't hickering in the House and Senate, the Alliance spenders were given to understand that the carte is not quite so blanche as they might hope.

Even assuming a more generous Congressional attitude toward long-range financing rather than year-to-year appropriations, some observers were inclined to skepticism in re Treasury Secretary Dillon's implied promise of 20 billion dollars over a ten-year period. Answering the skeptics, Dillon assured the Punta del Este delegates that a large share of the 20 billion would come from such already-established and soon-to-be-expanded agencies as the Export-Import Bank, Development Loan Fund, the World Bank, the International Cooperation Administration, International Finance Corporation and the Inter-American Development Bank. He also expects increased investment by private entities. But, notwithstanding such assurances, certain financial experts view Dillon's figures as overly optimistic. They point out, for example, that Dillon's expectation of 300 million dollars from the World Bank is unrealistic in view of the fact that it extended only 148 million dollars in credits to Latin America in 1960.

As for Secretary Dillon's expectations for increased investments and loans from private sources, the skeptics would appear to have even greater reason for gloom. On August 12nd of this year the U.S. Department of Commerce published a report indicating a sharp unprecedented drop in private U.S. investments in Latin America. Whereas in 1959 said investments totaled 218 million dollars, the total catapulted to a mere 95 million in 1960, a loss of more than 50 per cent in one year. Much of the blame for this sudden fear can be traced to the Cuban revolution and the sudden upsurge of revolutionary fervor elsewhere in the hemisphere. However, fiscal experts are quick to point out two other factors: (1) the termination of heretofore accelerated expansion of mining operations and (2) the sudden deceleration of activity in the petroleum industry in Venezuela. In the latter case one cannot dismiss the impact of Castro's expropriation policies as reflected in neighboring republics.

Traveling through the U.S. (reading and hearing press and television commentaries and talking with certain members of Congress), one gets the impression that the Alliance's primary problems will be of an economic nature. But, here in Mexico and elsewhere in Latin America, one has the feeling that the political obstacles will be equally if not more troublesome.

For President Kennedy and his aides the sine qua non of the Alliance is a program of structural reforms -- administrative, fiscal, agrarian, etc. -- by all or most of the participating countries. Perhaps too late, the U. S. has realized that the Castroism it so vehemently abhors and fears has its most effective base where squalor and disease and social injustice abound in the presence of arrogant wealth and power. Whereas Uncle Sam once supported and coddled the Trujillos, ~~Samanas~~ ^{Alcalas} Jimenes, et al., it now espouses political and social reforms of a fundamental nature. But it is this very insistence on reform (Kennedy has indeed reiterated the phrase "revolution"), this penchant for social change, which has evoked the most skepticism in Latin America.

In solemn heraldic language the 21 nations of the hemisphere proclaimed in writing that the needed reforms would be accomplished, but there must have been many a crossed finger guiding the pens that signed the final document. Will El Salvador's powerful well-entrenched "fourteen families" stand idly by while an agrarian program snatches away their vast coffee plantations? And what about the land-rich hacendados of Bolivia, Nicaragua, Peru, Brazil and other hemisphere republics? For all the vague illusory promises of basic reforms at Punta del Este, one cannot ignore this unavoidable truth: most of Kennedy's hoped-for reforms will seriously affect the personal economic fortunes of the governing cliques in the countries involved. One seriously doubts that these gentlemen shall willingly preside over the liquidation of their personal empires. This in spite of the fact that all of them are fully (or at least partially) aware that, unless voluntary drastic reforms are accomplished, their vast holdings will be taken from them forcibly by some emerging local Fidel Castro. And it may well be that their stubborn resistance to change is buttressed by the millions of dollars they have providentially stashed away in Swiss and American banks during the past few years. In short, they may be engaging in a prolonged "holding action" in the sure knowledge that their days are numbered.

In any event, the promised agrarian or fiscal reforms may paradoxically lead to either of two extremes, both of which would frustrate the stated intentions of the Alliance. On the one hand, Government X might place its program in the hands of timid conservatives who interpret "evolution" as "status quo with minimal changes." Or the whole matter might be referred to do-nothing, what's - in - it - for - me congressional bodies, with little or no prodding from the executive branch of government. On the other hand, Government X might indulge in hasty improvised measures born of public clamor and political flaccidity, all of which could produce one of those nightmare fracasos which embarrass even the most ardent revolutionary. Most of Latin America considers itself decades behind in the socio-economic development of the West, and the urge to move quickly and drastically is everywhere evident.

Now a word about Mr. Dillia's expectations in the realm of private investments as part of the Alianza para el Progreso. According to reports in some of the business journals, prospective investors from Europe, Japan and the United States have certain misgivings about the program.

First of all, these businessmen feel that the Alliance offers only minimal encouragement for private investment in Latin America. Indeed, some are quick to point out that in his initial speech at Punta del Este, Secretary Dillia did not once mention private enterprise -- nor in any of his subsequent comments before the committee on labor. They feel, therefore, that the Alliance is oriented toward government-to-government loans and public works projects on massive scales beyond the scope of the individual entrepreneur.

Secondly, there's considerable doubt as to the real intentions of Latin American governments in re fiscal reform. It will be exceedingly difficult, they say, to alter the long-standing pattern of heavy reliance on import duties and stiff taxes for foreign corporations. Income taxes are comparatively low and tax collection notoriously lax and subject to easy evasion by individuals, merchants and local corporations alike.

Thirdly, these foreign investors are especially dubious about the agrarian aspects of the Alliance. They are predictably apprehensive about expropriation of their immense landholdings for distribution in small parcels among the landless campesinos. (In his state of the union speech on September 1st, Mexico's President Lopez Mateos reported the recent government acquisition of three huge latifundios heretofore owned by Americans.) But aside from a disinclination to see themselves "done in", certain foreign businessmen contend that small farms (or ejidos) are not nearly as productive acre-per-acre as the larger estates -- that even the "cooperatives" of the Fidel Castro type will prove "uneconomic." Rather than expropriate and divide the existing highly productive latifundios, these gentlemen propose immediate and widespread colonization of unused lands. This, they argue, would be cheaper because there would be no cost of indemnification for expropriated properties nor a diminution of productive capacity. For this reason they far prefer the colonization measures of Peru and Brazil to the more drastic style of Mexico and Bolivia.

However, all of the aforementioned uncertainties are of less concern than the omnipresent X factor: the impact of Fidel Castro on all of Latin America. How, why, and to what extent can Fidelismo affect the Allianza para el Progreso? Some observers feel that Castro is indeed the real (if not de jure) father of the Alliance; that without his cataclysmic emergence, the United States would have continued to ignore the poor-countryside republics of the south. (In the 1950's only 3% of our foreign aid went to the 21 nations which comprise Latin America. Laos alone received more aid than all of these countries combined.) But, more importantly, the Cuban premier has aroused the expectations of the heretofore sullen masses throughout the hemisphere, and their respective leaders have become acutely aware of the rumbling discontent. Some of these politicos would no doubt welcome a sudden disposal of the Castro annoyance, but none of them would have participated in a move to openly chastise Cuba at the Punta del Este conference. As a matter of fact, "Che" Guevara managed to accomplish a few minor triumphs despite the cool reception he got from most of the delegates. His post-conference meetings with President Frondizi of Argentina and ex-President Quadros of Brazil are not to be taken lightly.

Although the United States managed to obtain all of the desired signatures on the final declaration at Uruguay, it would be naive for us to suppose that we can once again count on the heretofore solid backing of Latin America. There is, in fact, an increased spirit of neutralism or independence (call it what you will) throughout the hemisphere. Note, for example, that during the conference the then vice-president (now president) of Brazil was on an economic mission to East China. Bolivia, too, had sent a mission to Russia. And shortly after the conference, President Lopez Mateos told an opening session of the Mexican congress that his country has been and will continue to follow an independent course, free of any adherence to either of the great powers.

It would appear, therefore, that the Alliance for Progress faces a tougher and more devious course than the Good Neighbor policy of Franklin Roosevelt. And it is equally apparent that unless the plan does succeed, there will be a prolonged period of unrest, bloodshed and misery -- perhaps oblivion.

EMPLOYEE'S WITHHOLDING EXEMPTION CERTIFICATE AND QUESTIONNAIRE

PRINT NAME (Pseudonym)

TICBORN, Edward O.

WITHHOLDING EXEMPTIONS

INSTRUCTIONS

1. NUMBER OF EXEMPTIONS.--Do not claim more than the correct number of exemptions. However, if you expect to owe more income tax for the year than will be withheld if you claim every exemption to which you are entitled, you may increase the withholding by claiming a smaller number of exemptions.

2. CHANGES IN EXEMPTIONS.--You may file a new certificate at any time if the number of your exemptions INCREASES.

You must file a new certificate within 10 days if the number of exemptions previously claimed by you DECREASES for any of the following reasons:

(a) Your wife (or husband) for whom you have been claiming exemption is divorced or legally separated, or claims her (or his) own exemption on a separate certificate.

(b) The support of a dependent for whom you claimed exemption is taken over by someone else, so that you no longer expect to furnish more than half the support for the year.

(c) You find that a dependent for whom you claimed exemption will receive $600 or more of income of his own during the year (except your child who is a student or who is under 19 years of age).

OTHER DECREASES in exemption, such as the death of a wife or a dependent, do not affect your withholding until the next year, but require the filing of a new certificate by December 1 of the year in which they occur.

For further information about changes in exemption status resulting from marriage, divorce, legal separation, birth, death, new dependents, multiple support agreements, old age, blindness, etc., consult your local District Director of Internal Revenue or your employer.

3. DEPENDENTS.--To qualify as your dependent (line 4 below), a person (a) must receive more than one-half of his or her support from you for the year, and (b) must have less than $600 gross income during the year (except your child who is a student or who is under 19 years of age), and (c) must not be claimed as an exemption by such person's husband or wife, and (d) must be a citizen or resident of the United States or a resident of Canada, Mexico, the Republic of Panama or the Canal Zone, and (e) must (1) have your home as his principal residence and be a member of your household for the entire year, or (2) be related to you as follows:

Your son or daughter (including legally adopted children), grandchild, stepson, stepdaughter, son-in-law, or daughter-in-law;
Your father, mother, grandparent, stepfather, stepmother, father-in-law, or mother-in-law;
Your brother, sister, stepbrother, stepsister, half brother, half sister, brother-in-law, or sister-in-law;
Your uncle, aunt, nephew, or niece (but only if related by blood).

4. PENALTIES.--Penalties are imposed for willfully supplying false information or willful failure to supply information which would reduce the withholding exemption.

1. If SINGLE, and you claim an exemption, write the figure "1"
2. If MARRIED, one exemption each for husband and wife if not claimed on another certificate.
 - (a) If you claim both of these exemptions, write the figure "2" } 2
 - (b) If you claim one of these exemptions, write the figure "1" }
 - (c) If you claim neither of these exemptions, write "0"
3. Exemptions for age and blindness (applicable only to you and your wife but not to dependents):
 - (a) If you or your wife will be 65 years of age or older at the end of the year, and you claim this exemption, write the figure "1"; if both will be 65 or older, and you claim both of these exemptions, write the figure "2".
 - (b) If you or your wife are blind, and you claim this exemption, write the figure "1"; if both are blind, and you claim both of these exemptions, write the figure "2".
4. If you claim exemptions for one or more dependents, write the number of such exemptions. (Do not claim exemption for a dependent unless you are qualified under instruction 3 above.) 3
5. Add the number of exemptions which you have claimed above and write the total. 5

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: Plans for Debriefing of Edward G. Tichborn (P) in Washington

1. On 6 March Edward G. Tichborn (P) telephoned C/PAG to inform him that he had returned from his TDY assignment [redacted]. He felt that his trip has been a successful one and that he would have a meaty report to submit. He also suggested that he felt it would be useful if he were debriefed by the interested parties at Headquarters.

2. C/PAG and I agreed that this would be the most useful manner for obtaining all of the details of his activities [redacted] as well as providing an opportunity for WH officers to pose any questions they might have. Consequently I contacted Messrs. [redacted] of WHD and suggested that Tichborn (P) come to Washington on Sunday, 12 March and be debriefed on 13 and 14 March. They agreed this would be an excellent idea.

3. [redacted] wanted to check on the financial aspect of Tichborn's (P) trip East. He asked if he would receive an additional salary for that time period. I suggested (as C/PAG had discussed with me) that we would recommend to Tichborn (P) that this debriefing be included in the salary he was informed he would receive for this assignment. (This figure would be $500 per week, or $1,000 for two weeks.) Expenses covering this projected trip to Washington would, however, be separate. I also mentioned [redacted] that this would be suggested to Tichborn and that I felt he would be amenable since this would bring the total time he was on assignment for WH to two weeks. [redacted] agreed that I should call Tichborn (P) and ask him to come East next Sunday since he felt it extremely important that they talk with him first-hand. [redacted] did not seem to be particularly concerned about the question of salary in this case.)

4. As a result of this go-ahead [redacted] I called Tichborn (P) on 7 March, mentioned the question of salary as best I could in double-talk, and he said he understood. He also said that he had informed C/PAG that he could not be away from the U.S. for more than a ten-day period at one time, but that he could then come on to Washington at a later date. (He left [redacted] on 22 February and returned to the U.S. on 5 March). Tichborn (P) said he would fly out on Sunday and call me first thing Monday morning, 13 March; he will be staying at the Statler Hotel. I told him I would meet him there and bring some "friends" along. (On this subject, [redacted] said he felt [redacted] DC/WH, might want to attend the debriefing.)

5. During the time that Tichborn (P) is in Washington, he will also sign the amendment to his contract and the outstanding financial matters will be taken care of.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

SUBJECT: TDY Assignment of Edward G. Tichborn (P) [redacted]

REFERENCES: A. Memorandum for the Record, 18 January 1961

B. Memorandum for the Record, 23 January 1961

1. In early January we had suggested [redacted] that they might find the services of a political consultant of value in their area. The Division checked this out with the Station who agreed that it was an idea worth looking into and asked for additional details. This information was forwarded to the field and in reply, the Station requested that we send the individual concerned [redacted] to assess the political situation and to give them any related assistance possible.

2. As a consequence, [redacted] contacted Edward G. Tichborn (P) by telephone and told him of our interest. Due to the Station's request which we wanted to fill promptly, and also to Tichborn's (P) personal schedule (and the possibility that he might receive an appointment within the Administration in the near future) we wanted to get him [redacted] as soon as possible. After consultation with Tichborn (P) and with the Desk, it was decided that he would leave [redacted] on 23 February and arrive [redacted] the following morning.

3. In his telephone conversation, [redacted] was forced to rely on the system of "double talking" for the purpose of security; however, the possibility that his services might be required had already been mentioned to Tichborn (P) when he was in Washington on personal matters in January (see Ref. B). [] also attempted to "second guess" Tichborn's (P) feelings on this assignment when arranging the details with WHD. The fact that he might receive an appointment was the major factor under consideration, especially in the sense that first, we did not want to expose Tichborn (P) as a KUBARK agent and secondly, we did not want in any way to present Tichborn (P) with any problems in relation to his possible appointment.

4. [] told Tichborn (P) in guarded language which was apparently well understood by him that the COS ("our senior partner") and the [] ("the senior partner of our cousin firm") would be witting as to his KUBARK connections and that undoubtedly JOEGGPIANT (an American cut-out and contact of the Station) and [] JUVAN-1 (a [] businessman and Station contact with whom he would be working) would also be witting. However, as agreed with WH, the locals other than JUVAN-1 would be unwitting as to his KUBARK connections. Tichborn (P) was informed that he would be "visiting" [] and his "old friend" JOEGGPIANT and this cover story was to be cited to the local []

5. [] especially pointed out to Tichborn (P) that since WH felt he should talk [] we wanted him to be aware of this in the event that this possibility arose at the Station's request. [] added that of course we would not want [] to take umbrage, etc. at Tichborn's (P) visit or activities and that we had been assured by someone [] who knows [] that the latter could be counted upon for his cooperation and discretion. Tichborn (P) then asked specifically whether he would definitely talk [] and [] informed him that this would depend upon the Station's judgment. (WH had informed us that this was a possibility since [] is new to his post and the Station is trying to work closely with him from the beginning; WH felt that if [] later learned that Tichborn (P) had been in the area without his knowledge, he might take offense.) In this event, the Station was advised [] to use our channels for any communications to the Department concerning Tichborn (P).

6. WH had also told us that they might have to inform the Department of Tichborn's (P) trip [] and then decided that this would not be necessary. However, on 23 February, a final decision was made that this would have to be done and since C/WH works so closely [] PAC did agree to this but requested that this information be in general terms only and that Tichborn's (P) name not be given. WH agreed that it could be done in this way. WH also stated that this information will be passed [] and would be limited to him []

7. Tichborn's (P) instructions were that he would be met at the airport if possible by JUEGGPIANT (whose true name and description were provided); if he did not appear, Tichborn (P) was to go to the Intercontinental Hotel and wait there to be contacted by either JUEGGPIANT [] or the COS []. Upon meeting Tichborn (P) JUEGGPIANT, as a recognition signal, would say "I am a friend of Horace".

8. Tichborn (P) asked if some expense money could be provided him [] and he was assured that this would be arranged. Since time (and the airlines strike) did not permit his coming to Washington for a detailed briefing on the political situation [] and on his specific mission, these matters plus the funds for expenses will be handled by the Station.

9. Two cables were sent to the field concerning the subject of Tichborn's (P) arrival [] (DIR 26346, OUT 76088 and DIR 26522, OUT 76527). These cables spelled out Tichborn's (P) cover, the need for special discretion on the part of those individuals who are witting of his relationship with KUBARK, the meeting or contact arrangements, the fact that detailed briefings by the Station would be necessary since it had not been possible to undertake this at Headquarters, his pseudonym and approval for the Station's providing him with certain funds.

10. In summary, PAC's interest was to arrange for Tichborn's (P) arrival [] as soon as possible and at the same time to protect his KIBARK status and assure that this present mission would not in any way interfere with his possible appointment to a post in the Administration.

Mr. Henry F. Lopes

Dear Henry,

Enclosed is a thermofax copy of the original expense sheet you forwarded to me. Since the regulations require that this accounting be quite specific (much more so than the one for the company) there are a few additions I would appreciate your making. These are marked on the enclosed copy and suggestions for more specific details are keyed thereto below:

1. For all major transportation expenses (plane, train) please add the approximate hours of arrival and/or departure.
2. Please include names of the contacts included in these expenses.
3. Indicate briefly the nature of phone calls.
4. Add something here about "blending in with local color", etc.
5. Make some indication that the books, magazines and newspapers were for background information, etc., related to your trip.
6. A notation that this trip was for operational purposes.

I'm sorry that this is a somewhat bothersome procedure. However, I do want to be able to settle these financial matters for you as quickly as possible after I receive the receipts (or bills) and this will be of valuable assistance in that procedure.

Hops all goes well - let me know the results of your operation and the expenses involved, I shall try to do something about them.

Sincerely,

Dear Hank,

Your detailed letter arrived in yesterday's mail. However, in order to process it I also need all receipts relative to those expenses. This would include all possible ticket stubs for all transportation, car rentals, hotel bills, doctor bills, telephone charges, and other supporting receipts.

The balance of your fee will be deposited after this accounting has been reconciled.

In the future, in any other communications directed to me, please use your true name in the return address. Continue to sign accounts directed to me [redacted]

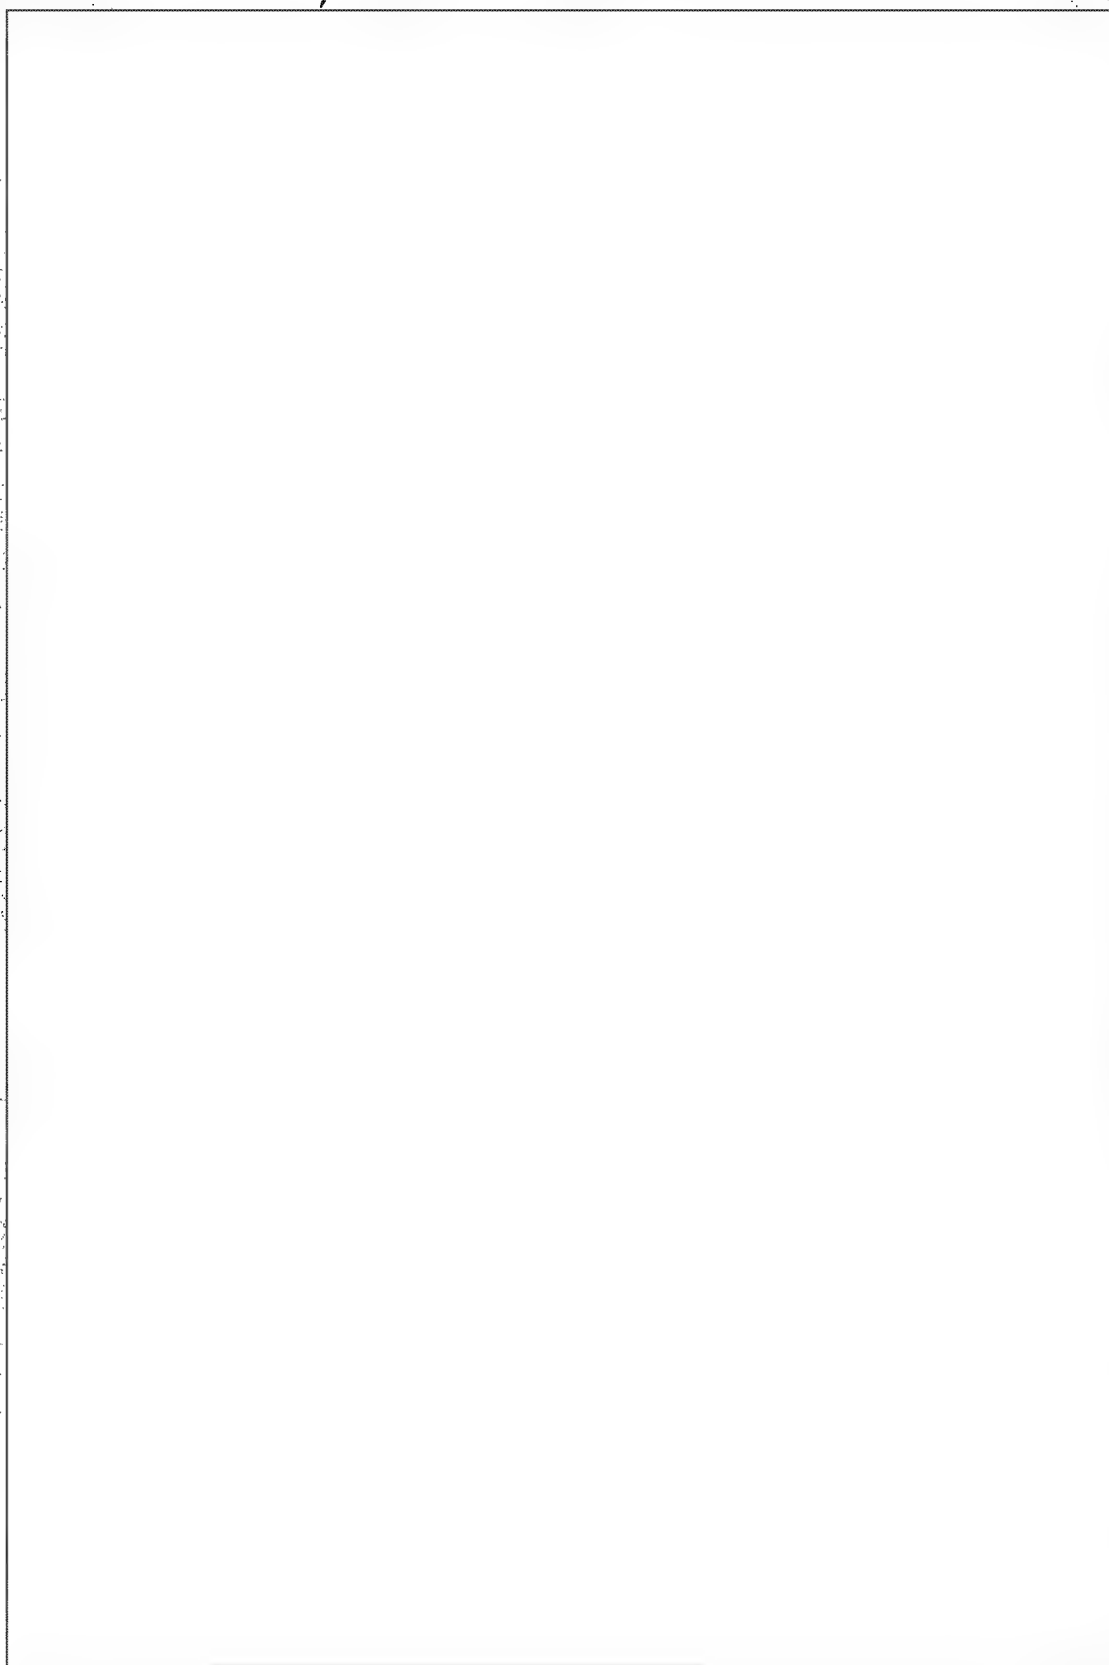

Thanking you for your cooperation and hoping to hear from you soon, I remain

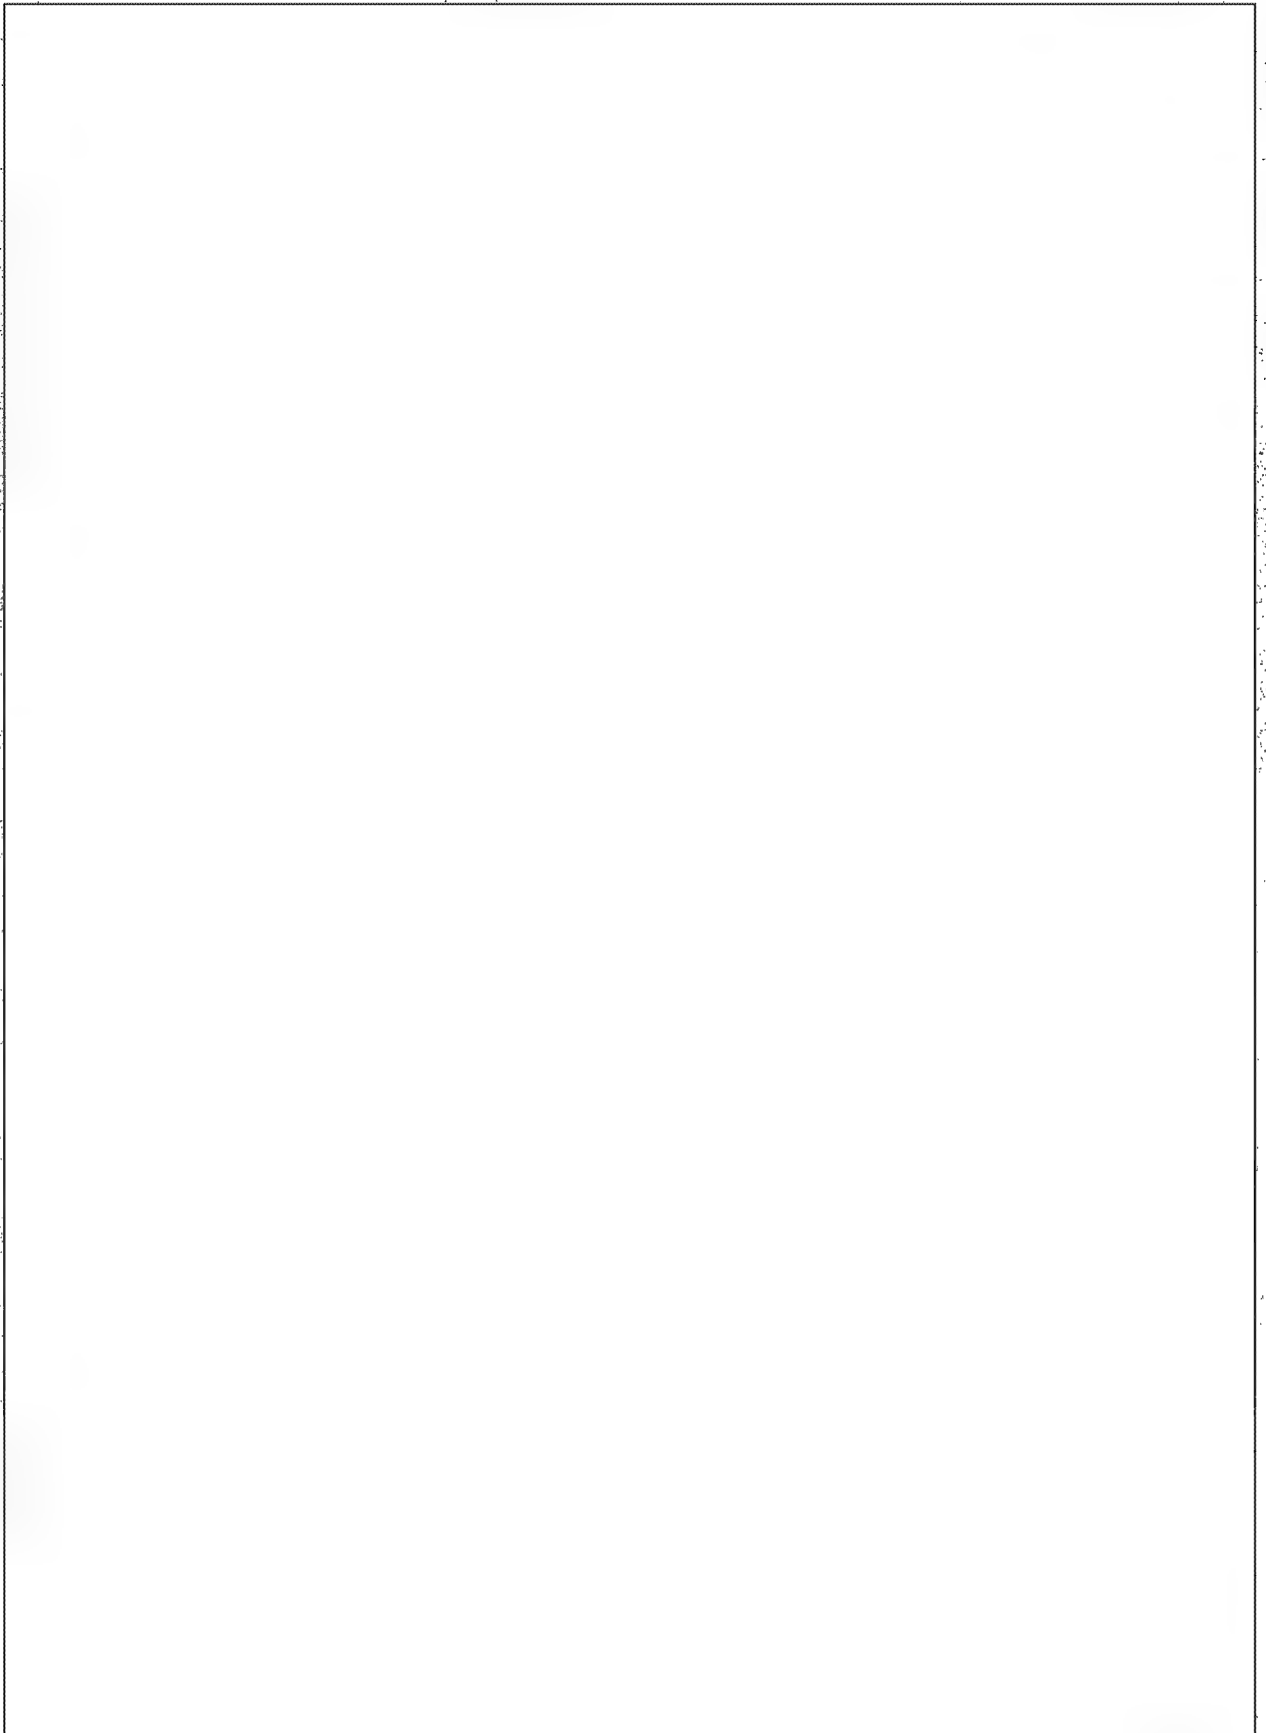

Sincerely yours,
